

CONTENTS

Contributors

Foreword

Preface

Introduction

- | | |
|--|----|
| 1. Why palliative care for older people is a public health priority | 10 |
| Ageing populations | |
| The changing epidemiology of disease | |
| The increasing age of caregivers | |
| Financial implications for health care systems | |
| The range of settings for care | |
| 2. Palliative care: the needs and rights of older people and their families | 14 |
| Palliative care | |
| The needs of older people at the end of life | |
| The needs of caregivers | |
| A new way of looking at palliative care | |
| Autonomy and choice | |
| Preferences for place of care and death | |
| 3. Evidence of underassessment and undertreatment | 20 |
| Underassessment of pain | |
| Lack of information and involvement in decision-making | |
| Lack of home care | |
| Lack of access to specialist services | |
| Lack of palliative care within nursing and residential homes | |
| 4. Evidence of effective care solutions | 26 |
| Palliative care skills of individual health professionals | |
| Providing holistic care | |
| Coordinating care across different settings | |
| Supporting families and caregivers | |
| Specialist palliative care | |
| Developing palliative care services for non-cancer patients | |
| Advanced care planning | |
| Generalizability of findings | |
| 5. The challenge for health policy- and decision-makers | 32 |
| The challenge | |
| Evidence for effective care solutions | |
| Barriers to overcome | |
| Potential solutions: a public health policy approach | |
| Ensuring palliative care is integral to health services | |
| Improving the application of palliative care skills across all settings | |
| Identifying gaps in the research base | |
| 6. Recommendations | 36 |

