Contents

Preface v

Acknowledgements vii

Introduction ix

1. Understanding community-based distribution 1
   - CBD and contraceptive social marketing 2
   - Factors affecting the success of CBD 3
   - Description of a hypothetical CBD programme . . . 3
   - Examples of CBD distributors 8

2. Creating a foundation for community-based distribution. 9
   - Placement of the programme within the organization 9
   - Establishing support within the organization 11
   - Understanding community needs 13
   - Gaining support from the community. 16
   - Communicating with other organizations. 19
   - Forming an advisory team 21

3. Planning a CBD programme. 22
   - Determining the scope of the programme 22
   - Selecting an effective service-delivery strategy 23
   - Developing objectives 28
   - Developing a workplan 31
   - Identifying necessary resources. 33
   - Preparing a budget. 39

4. Implementing the CBD programme 43
   - Task analysis 43
   - Selecting and training personnel 48
   - Supervision 53

Information, education and communication activities. 61
Establishing a logistics system 65

5. Monitoring and evaluating the programme 72
Monitoring the programme. 73
Estimating the couple–years of protection (CYP) . . 79
Evaluating the programme 80

6. Special issues 84
Gaining support from health professionals 85
Addressing legal issues. 86
Integrating other health services 89
Quality assurance 92
HIV/AIDS. 96
Breast-feeding. 97

References 101

Selected further reading 104

Annex 1. Projected demand for contraceptives in developing countries, by method, 1990–2000 109

Annex 2. Sources of demographic data for planning CBD programmes 110

Annex 3. A sample community survey of fertility and use of family planning methods among women of reproductive age (15–45 years) 112

Annex 4. A sample workplan for a CBD programme . 120

Annex 5. Sources of contraceptives for family planning programmes 124

Annex 6. Sources of technical assistance for CBD programmes 126

Annex 7. Sources of information materials for family planning programmes 128

Annex 8. Model budget for a CBD programme. 131